Carnegie Foundation Recommends Withdrawal of Support for College.

New York, Feb. 16,-The Carnegie Coundation for the Advancement of Teaching in its first report on the school system of the states of the union has just been announced, after an investigation and study of the public schools of Vermont. The report is semewhat remarkable in that it recommends the confinement of state aid to the public school system, eliminating subsidies now going to the higher educational institutions of that state.

Cannot Afford State University, Vermont cannot afford a state university, the report says, and further states that it is unwise to give public money and public pressing to private corporations, because these can and will be supported by private benecolence in the way of endowments.

Pablic Schools Need Aid.

The public schools, on the other hand, need money. They provide the entire education of more than nine-tentils of the children in the state. Half of the teachers, however, have had no professioal training and are naid only nine dollars a week or less. The report recommends that the state spend on the common schools what it now gives the colleges and as much more as it can afford, giving the teachers better training and better salaries; providing them with more aid and guidance through better supervision and a more helpful state administration.

took his text from First Corintmans. 3:11: "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

He said: "When you see a foundation being laid you can judge what sort of house is to be built upon it. If a man surceeds in anything, he has to serve his apprenticeship and lay the foundation for it. Some people trust to their feelings. If you were traveling on a railroad train, and trusted to your feelings, you would probably go in the opposite direction to the one you wanted to go. Many people feel saved, when they will be lost, for unless you trust in the Lord you are lost."
